

LLM INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS LAW

(WITH A PATHWAY IN COMMERCIAL ARBITRATION)

Part-time (1.5 years)

Delivered in Mauritius

Starts in September 2019

UCLan's Masters in International Business Law (with a pathway in Commercial Arbitration) course provides students with the analytical and reflective skills required in the competitive domains of international business law and international trade law. On completion of this course students will be equipped with the transferable skills that are essential in the modern workplace and are crucial to effective leadership, such as negotiation, problem solving and dispute resolution. Successful candidates will graduate with a recognised postgraduate qualification in International Business Law.

Why study this course?

- Aimed at those working within the international business sector and those who need knowledge of business law, commercial arbitration and international trade law as part of their job role
- Students will develop expertise in international trade law, of particular relevance for those wishing to capitalise on an increased demand for international trade lawyers in the United Kingdom, post-BREXIT.
- Available to law and non-law graduates
- Receive excellent individual support from professionally qualified lawyers ensuring you maximise your personal potential and career aspirations
- Study in a highly practical and interactive learning environment designed to prepare you for real-life situations

Course content

Core modules in Advanced Legal Systems, WTO Law and Policy, International Commercial Arbitration and International Commercial Litigation.

Options* are available from a range of LLM modules including:

International Commercial Mediation, International Intellectual Property Law,

The culmination of the programme is a 15,000 word dissertation.

The course is supported by the University's web-based Blackboard facility, the online learning environment.

*Subject to sufficient student numbers and resources

Did you know?

EXTRA QUALIFICATIONS AVAILABLE!

- Lancashire Law School has Recognised Course Provider (RCP) status from the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators. Students who successfully complete the International Commercial Arbitration module will be eligible for Associate Membership of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators, allowing them to use the post-nominal letters ACI Arb. This qualification will also allow students to progress further towards qualification as a chartered arbitrator through additional courses that will be offered within the Law School.
- Lancashire Law School has achieved an international reputation for its specialisation in Mediation law and practice. Students who successfully complete the International Commercial Mediation module will gain accredited mediator status, as this module is approved by the Civil Mediation Council, the recognised authority in the United Kingdom for civil and commercial mediation.